Licensure Definitions:

Assisted Living Residence (ALR/ALP): An Assisted Living Residence is a certified adult home or enriched housing program that has been approved by the Department of Health for licensure as an ALR. An ALR is required to provide or arrange for housing, twenty-four hour on-site monitoring, and personal care services and/or home care services in a home-like setting to five or more adult residents.

ALRs must also provide daily meals and snacks, case management services, and is required to develop an individualized service plan for residents.

Enhanced ALR (EALR): Enhanced ALRs are certified to offer an enhanced level of care need to serve people who wish to remain in the residence as they have age-related difficulties beyond what a basic ALR can provide. People in an Enhanced ALR may require assistance to get out of a chair, need the assistance of another to walk or use stairs, need assistance with medical equipment, and/or need assistance to manage personal care ie: showering or incontinence.

Special Needs ALR (SNALR): Some ALRs may also be certified to serve people with special needs, for example Alzheimer’s disease or other types of dementia. Special Needs ALRs have submitted plans for specialized services, environmental features, and staffing levels that have been approved by the New York State Department of Health.

The services offered by these homes are tailored to the unique needs of the people they serve. Sometimes people with dementia may not need the more specialized services required in a Special Needs ALR, however, if the degree of dementia requires that the person be in a secured environment, or services must be highly specialized to address their needs, they may need the services and environmental features only available in a Special Needs ALR.
